VISION FOR NEW INDIA @ 75

Neeraj Sinha, Naman Agrawal and Siddhey G Shinde

When India turns 75 on August 15, 2022, it will mark a moment which comes but rarely in history, when we step out from the old to the new. It will be the era of a New India; an era where India begins its journey to become a global leader in thought and action. The preparation towards this began in 2017 when Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi gave his clarion call for establishing a New India by 2022. In line with this call, the NITI Aayog created the 'Strategy for New India @ 75' released in 2018. This strategy is all the more essential to transform the nation in the post-pandemic world.

The 'Strategy for New India @ 75' had three key messages from the Prime Minister for New India. First, development must become a mass movement, in which every Indian recognizes his/her role and also experiences the tangible benefits accruing to him/her in the form of better ease of living. Second, development strategy should help achieve broad-based economic growth to ensure balanced development across all regions and States and across sectors. Third, the strategy when implemented, will bridge the gap between public and private sector performance. The strategy is an attempt to bring innovation, technology, enterprise and efficient management together, at the core of policy formulation and implementation.

The term 'policy' is frequently used in government parlance, but what is a 'policy'? In its simplest form, a policy is a framework or plan within which all actions for the accomplishment of an objective are envisioned, implemented, and evaluated. Public policy, by extension, applies to the objectives that pertain to the welfare of the public. The science of policymaking is vast and varied, but like any science, it values analytical thinking, systematic action, and objective evaluation. The life cycle of a policy can be seen in five distinct stages—Problem Identification, Policy Formulation, Policy Adoption, Policy Implementation, and Monitoring and Evaluation.

Given the brisk pace of development in the world today, the development in New India is expected to be achieved sooner than envisioned. Therefore, the policy ecosystem of New India must not fall behind. This cannot be achieved solely by conventional methods. It requires a paradigm shift in the thought process, methods, and tools of the policymakers. For example, the conventional approach to policy is to encourage innovation and regulate technology as goal of public welfare. While this is still required, it is imperative that policymakers change their perspective from considering innovation and technology an outcome to considering it a tool to achieve their objectives. Similarly, the identified focus areas such as agriculture, industry, information and communication, infrastructure, logistics and transport, education and employment, health and wellness, local governance, etc. require either a sharper focus on implementing the flagship schemes already in place or a new design and initiative to achieve India's true potential. The following sections draw on the strategy and go a step further to describe how Innovation and Technology can play a role in those areas.

In agriculture, emphasis must shift to converting farmers to 'agripreneurs'. The e-National Agriculture Markets (e-NAMs) should be further expanded. A unified national market, coupled with opening up the export regime, can boost this sector. Automation through use of IoT (Internet of Things) technology and geospatial data in agriculture should be encouraged. This should start with mobile-based irrigation platforms and extend to precision agriculture that leverages sensor data from the plant, soil, water and air, as well as geospatial data for crop and climate monitoring. Proactive dissemination of techniques on 'Zero Budget Natural Farming' (ZBNF) should be undertaken in low-income rural regions, so as to increase farmers' income and improve land quality.

In industry, the focus must be on encouraging adoption of Industry 4.0 in MSMEs. Small business research programmes for encouraging R&D in MSMEs need to be established. The support to micro innovations will create a culture of innovation across the workforce.

NEET EXAM-IMPORTANCE & BENEFITS

Being a doctor has always been considered a noble and honourable profession, but ever since COVID-19, doctors along with the nurses and other healthcare professionals working on the front lines, have become actual heroes. The public now sees these courageous men and women risking their lives for others while isolating themselves from their own families to do so.

World Health Organization says 'at least' 1,15,000 health workers have now died from COVID-19. Such grim numbers have shocked both the public and the health workers. Yes, these careers involve hard work, life or death levels of responsibility, and many stressful situations. No wonder, then, that medicine is regarded as a respected and a lucrative career option by young professionals, today.

Perhaps, there is no other career which commands such respect and awe as medicine. The power to heal has traditionally placed the medical field several rungs above any other profession. And while it requires years of hard work and dedicated study before you can see the light of day, the scope and prospects in the medical field have continuously attracted the brightest and the best.

Entry into the medical profession is tough and competitive, so as to select the most able and competent to deal with human life. The purpose of conducting entrance examinations is therefore to select candidates for admission to medical courses at diploma, degree, post-diploma, postgraduate degree and research levels, and are held at the all-India level and state level.

Benefits of NEET

The benefit of being the only medical entrance examination in India is quite engaging. Here are some of the reasons:

Common Entrance Test

With NEET being the only medical entrance examination in India, it prevents the private medical colleges from conducting any entrance examination of its own. NEET also prevents private universities from admitting students who do not qualify to pursue Medical. The NEET entrance exam helps the medical aspirants to pursue medical courses or MBBS from Abroad.

Equal Opportunity

Students who qualify NEET will get the opportunity to securing a seat at any medical colleges in any State. Qualifying NEET with high scores and secure a good rank in the All-India Merit List enable the students to get a seat in the most prestigious medical college of the country.

Uniform Admission

NEET exam was introduced to bring about uniformity in the admission procedure to the medical colleges in India. The admissions to the medical universities are only accepted through NEET qualification. Some of the medical universities abroad offer

MBBS seats to the medical aspirants after they qualify the NEET exam.

Saves time

The introduction of the NEET exam changes a lot in the medical entrance examination scenario. It saves the students' time from appearing in multiple exams for the admissions to the medical colleges. Having one exam to attempt saves the student's money as well since there will only be one-time registration.

BASIC INGREDIENTS FOR EXAM PREPARATION

- ♦ Persistence towards studies
- ♦ Dedication to their preparation
- ♦ Clear objective towards your career and life ahead
- ♦ Smart work and clarity of basic concepts of your study programme

Following are the guidelines to help you prepare better for the medical entrance exams:

1. Have a long-term goal of finishing the syllabus till the exam date, but focus more on short term goals. The syllabus is vast, take baby steps. Don't plan too much in advance. Plan for a day or a week. Set realistic targets for a week and check your progress at the end of the week.
2. Do not buy every book in town. Go through the NCERT books thoroughly, and refer to another 1 or 2 books, for each subject for the numerical aspect and to know a little more about a particular topic.
3. Focus more on clearing your fundamentals. Once you are clear about your concepts, only then move to the depths of a particular topic. In case you feel you do not understand a certain concept, do not hesitate to ask your friends or mentors.120821
4. Prepare a time table. Adhere to it.
5. Keep a check on your progress by taking sectional tests. Sectional tests help you fine tune your preparation, help you manage time better and, also help improve weak areas.
6. Keep revising whatever you do.
7. Read blogs/articles/papers/books by famous doctors. If nothing else, it will tell you a little about what these people have done, what drives them and why they like what they do.
8. Do not put yourself under too much pressure. Take time out for yourself. Do something you love, develop a hobby and have fun while preparing.

COULDN'T CLEAR THE NEET EXAM? HERE ARE FEW CAREER PATHS TO EXPLORE INSTEAD.

What many of us do not know is that Medicine is only one amongst a hundred career options with equally good (or better) scope and opportunities. Many of these options are even related to Biology, Medicine and Science.

1. Look for Courses in Biology and Life Sciences

A lot of students get into the PCB stream because they like studying Biology but then get lured away by the charm of Medicine. With Medicine side-lined as an option, you can go on to explore your love for Biology again, that too in many different forms! From well-known fields like Botany, Zoology and Microbiology to upcoming ones like Marine Biology, Biochemistry and Genetics, the fields of Biology and the Life Sciences have a lot to offer you.

The biggest avenue for work in this field is Research and Development. With cutting-edge advances in research in the fields of health, medicine and even technology, competent researchers are very much in demand. There are many other jobs and professional opportunities available in different industries, depending upon the field in question.

If you were a PCMB student, then you can even look at inter-disciplinary fields in Biology, such as Biotechnology, Genetic Engineering, Biomedical Engineering, Biostatistics, etc. Since these are undergraduate degrees, you can even go on to pursue a variety of courses in Biology, Life Sciences, Health Management, Education, etc. for your post-graduation, giving you a diverse number of career options at hand.

2. The World of Allied Medicine

You do not have to be a doctor to fulfil your passion for medicine. The entire branch of Allied Medicine forms the backbone of the healthcare system. Professionals in these fields assist doctors in their work and make patient care, diagnosis and treatment possible. With career paths ranging from Optometry, Audiology and Physiotherapy to Medical Lab Technology, Nursing, Radio Technology and Clinical Research, there are a vast number of opportunities to explore. All of these fields have diverse types of work you will get to do.

3. Nursing

This year, the NEET UG 2021 exam can also be given to seek admission to B.Sc. Nursing courses across the country, for the first time ever.

Nursing is one of the strongest pillars that the medicine profession stands on. The profession revolves around taking care of people which includes their physical as well as psychological maladies. At a senior level, the work in the nursing department includes managing particular groups of patients from paediatric ward, psychiatric ward, ICU, etc. Apart from that, the job involves taking care of the medication of the patients, maintaining patient records, administration, routine work, setting up of medical equipment and so much more. There are several career opportunities in nursing, not only in India but also abroad. With more and more nursing colleges opening up each day, it is a sign of the requirement of skilled and qualified people required for the service. Nursing is the right career option for those candidates who have the zeal and interest to serve the mankind. The person who believes in the curing of medically ill people and can work in hard conditions for long hours may choose the nursing as the career for himself/herself.

The women of India should have as much share in winning Swaraj as men. Probably in this peaceful struggle, women can out distance men by many a mile...now that the government has dragged the woman into the line of fire, I hope that women all over India will take up the challenge and organise themselves." It was in words such as these that Mahatma Gandhi appealed to the women of India to enter the struggle for India's freedom. "If non-violence is the law of our being, the future is with women...who can make a more effective appeal to the heart than women?... God has vouchsafed to women the power of non-violence more than to men." If the women of India rose, he said, no one could stop the country's march to freedom. It was with the coming of Gandhi on the political scene in India, that women started playing a significant role in the freedom struggle.

Women joined the freedom struggle because like men, they were inspired by patriotism and wanted to see the end of foreign rule. Hansa Mehta recalls that she joined the Civil Disobedience Movement in 1930 because the atmosphere in those days was such that one could hardly escape the infection. Usha Mehta remembered the patriotic songs and slogans she heard from the street and how they inspired her. In Yerawada jail, she asked her fellow prisoners why they had joined the freedom movement and most of them replied that they had done so out of genuine conviction and patriotic feelings.

Women's participation in such large numbers in Gandhi's mass movements was a kind of social revolution which made a breakthrough in their lives. Participation of women gave legitimacy to the Indian freedom movement and its claim that it represented all sections of Indian society. Satyagraha was a technique to wrest moral authority from the Raj and return it to its subjects by non-violent means. This method had a special appeal for women. British officials acknowledged that there was no doubt that but for women's participation, the movement would never have gained the force it did and it was due to them that it evoked sympathy among so many scholars, administrators and politicians, both in India and abroad.

Women revolutionaries bravely facing the police.

The participation of women in the freedom movement enforced the movement for women's rights. As Sarala Devi Chaudhurani asked, "How can we attain rights?" and answered, "By the strength of our agitation. We must force menfolk to concede to our demands and at the same time carry on propaganda among ourselves." Women made a tremendous impression by their participation in the Non Cooperation and Civil Disobedience Movements and after this, all moves to give social and political rights to them made a reference to women's role in the freedom struggle. If Gandhi drew women out of the four walls of their house to take part in the national movement, it was Jawaharlal Nehru who recognised the need to formally grant equal rights to women as embodied in the Resolution on Fundamental Rights passed at the Karachi Congress in 1931.

Gandhi in his letters and speeches to women repeatedly emphasised that women were not weak. Addressing a meeting in Bombay in 1920, Gandhi said: "I, therefore, want the women of India not to believe themselves weak. It is ignorance to call woman weak, woman who has been the mother of mighty heroes like Hanuman." And he wrote in 'Young India' in 1930, "To call women the weaker sex is a libel; it is man's injustice to woman. If by strength is meant brute strength, then indeed woman is less brute than man. If by strength is meant moral power, then woman is immeasurably man's superior. Has she not greater intuition, is she not more self sacrificing, has she not greater powers of endurance, has she not greater courage? Without her, man could not be. If non-violence is the law of our being, the future is with woman."

After the men were arrested, it was left to the women to conduct the campaign and they showed remarkable organisational skill in doing this. Many who participated continued to be active in politics after Independence, some devoted themselves to Gandhian constructive work, while others went back to their homes but the experience could not but have had an impact on their lives.

The focus of Women in Satyagraha is on women in the Gandhian mass movements. As India enters 75th year of its Independence on August 15, Employment News brings to its readers some of the many female revolutionaries who fought valiantly for our motherland.

AMRIT MAHOTSAV

आज़ादी का AMRIT MAHOTSAV

SWARNAKUMARI DEVI
(1855-1932)

Ten women attended the fourth session of the Congress in 1889. Among them was Swarnakumari Devi, who had discarded purdah and edited a Bengali journal, 'Bharati'. She, thus, earned the distinction of being the first Indian woman editor. In 1886, she started one of the earliest women's associations in India, 'Sakhi Samiti', "to foster an active and enlightened interest in the welfare of the country".

SARALA DEVI CHAUDHURANI

Of the many participants in the Swadeshi movement, Sarala Devi Chaudhurani, niece of Rabindranath Tagore, was the most conspicuous. At the seventeenth session of the Indian National Congress, a song composed by her, invoking the people of different provinces of the country to join hands in the national struggle, was sung by fifty girls trained by her. Sarala Devi organised the 'Suhrid Samiti' as an instrument of political work which tried to infuse a martial spirit among its members through religious rituals.

(1879-1949)

Nicknamed 'Nightingale of India', Sarojini Naidu became the President of Indian National Congress and was later appointed the Governor of the United Provinces. Sarojini Naidu was the first Indian woman to make politics her full-time occupation. In 1915, at the Bombay session of the Congress, she supported a resolution on self-government.

BASANTI DEVI

Basanti Devi took part in the Non-Cooperation and Civil Disobedience movements. Subhash Chandra Bose considered her as his "adopted mother". Basanti Devi and her sister-in-law (and freedom fighter) Urmila Devi led demonstrations and picketed shops selling foreign goods. They toured Bengal and asked women to boycott foreign goods. Basanti Devi became president of the Bengal Provincial Congress in 1921-22 and presided over its session in Chittagong in 1922.

DUVVURI SUBAMMA

Duvvuri Subamma actively participated in the Salt Satyagraha and Quit India movement. She established the women's wing of the Andhra Congress in 1921 and was also an excellent orator who invoked patriotism through her fiery speeches.

ANASUYA SARABHAI

Pioneer of the labour movement in India, and the founder of India's oldest union of textile workers, Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association, in 1920, Anasuya Sarabhai was one of the earliest leaders of the textile workers. During the textile workers strike, which lasted for three weeks during February and March 1918 involving 16,000 weavers, Anasuyaben assumed the leadership of the workers and the strike was successfully resolved by entirely peaceful and non-violent means with the intervention of Gandhi. Anasuya became a lifelong associate of Gandhi. In 1919, when Gandhi composed a new satyagraha pledge against the Rowlatt Act, among the first three signatories was Anasuya Sarabhai.

KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya was the driving force behind the renaissance of Indian handicrafts, handlooms, and theatre in independent India. She helped to uplift the socio-economic standard of Indian women by pioneering the cooperative movement. Kamaladevi became a leader of the women's movement (during the freedom struggle. She insisted and finally made Gandhi agree that women can be allowed to take part in the Salt Satyagraha. She held the view that Indian women launched a struggle not only for their country's freedom but also for their own freedom.

Lawyer, social worker and politician, Durgabai Deshmukh was a member of the Constituent Assembly of India and of the Planning Commission of India. One of the youngest among the women freedom fighters, Durgabai (Deshmukh) started her career at the age of eleven.

RANI GAIDINLIU

A Naga political leader, Rani Gaidinliu joined the freedom movement at the age of 13. She was arrested during Salt Satyagraha in 1932 and was sentenced to life imprisonment. From 1933 to 1947, she stayed in different jails and was released only after Independence in 1947 after spending 14 years in jail. Jawaharlal Nehru gave her the title of Rani or queen of her people. "We are free people, white men should not rule over us", this was her call to the ethnic Naga tribes of the North East.

USHA MEHTA
(1920-2000)

In Bombay, one of the most dramatic episodes was the role of Usha Mehta who as a child had joined the vanar sena during the Civil Disobedience movement, carrying secret messages for adults. When the Quit India movement started, Usha, together with some friends, operated an underground radio station named "Voice of Freedom". News of resistance and arrests, profiles of patriotic young men and women, and Gandhi's famous 'Do or Die' speech were broadcast daily. The main job of Usha was to broadcast news and give talks in Hindustani.

(1924-1942)

Also called Birbala and Shaheed (martyr), Kanaklata Barua was a freedom fighter from Assam. A young girl in her teens, (she) was shot dead while leading a procession bearing the Tricolour during the Quit India Movement of 1942.

VISION FOR NEW INDIA @ 75

At the national scale, programmes on Smart and Advanced Manufacturing to address the shortage of high-tech human resources are needed. This also would start with simple automation and lead up to rapid production through 3D printing.

In information and communication infrastructure, the BharatNet project is already underway with the goal of eliminating the digital divide. The challenges in implementation of its Phase 2 and Phase 3, which will complete the last-mile connectivity to every part of the nation, can be met by encouraging use of advanced communication technologies like mmWave communication and Free Space Optics. India's active participation in formulating international standards must increase and expand. As a result of its recent efforts, the 5Gi standard has been approved, which is designed specifically to serve rural and remote regions in developed countries.

In the broad sense of logistics and transport, the Bharatmala project must be expedited and more Dedicated Fright Corridors be established. These projects should be implemented with new materials/techniques developed for construction. The FASTag project is already being implemented, although some streamlining remains. Here, this learning should be expanded to create an IT-enabled traffic management system in urban regions and to geospatial tracking and management for long-haul vehicles. Coastal shipping and inland waterways infrastructure must also develop an IT-enabled platform. This is important for integrating different modes of transport and promoting multi-modal and digitised mobility.

In education and employment, the implementation of the National Education Policy 2020 is underway. At the school education level, a flexibility in educational streams and vocational education, clubbed with a new innovation ecosystem at the ground level by expanding the Atal Tinkering Labs program is needed. For higher education, there is a need to increase laboratory facilities and encourage non-linear studies. Such open access to education, clubbed with accelerated lab-to-market processes through Virtual Incubators, must be established. Similarly, re-skilling and up-skilling training through firms or through unemployment assistance programs must be offered. This will rapidly transform the workforce and also offer social security.

In health and wellness, the affordable housing in urban areas has been given a huge push to improve workers' living conditions and ensure equity. Looking forward, this can be clubbed with innovative construction technologies and integrated with a circular economy to provide a strong impetus to economic growth. The establishment of a network of Health and Wellness Centres (HWCs) should be complemented with public health programmes through soft touch governance, using targeted messaging and mobilizing the youth. Universal access to basic healthcare can be achieved rapidly through e-Health projects and telemedicine. The popularity of personal health and wellness technologies can be leveraged by supporting innovation in manufacturing of low-cost solutions.

In local governance, the emphasis must be placed to using and enabling technology. Spatial planning using GIS tools and land use monitoring using geospatial data increase the efficiency and productivity of the region. Ward committees and areas should be activated with a technology enabled 'Open Cities Framework' and the use of digital tools for feedback and reporting. In addition, the Digital Village programme must be scaled up rapidly to encourage the usage of information technology at the village level. This would include provision of citizen-centric services and increasing digital literacy through training. These changes can help achieve an engaged and active relationship between the government and the people.

In State and Central governance, the emphasis must be placed on the implementing 'Minimum Government, Maximum Governance'. A major overhaul of the numerous civil services is needed and must be based on a citizen-centric framework implemented through advanced ICT systems. Administrative reforms need to be designed in the changing context of emerging technologies and growing complexity of the economy. In addition, the scope of Swachh Bharat Mission may be expanded to cover initiatives for landfills, plastic waste and municipal waste and generating wealth from waste. This will create accessible and transparent governance.

The society today places a high value on innovative thinking primarily because it has been able to provide solutions to problems that conventional methods did not. The key insight here is that it is the utility of innovation, not the novelty, that makes it so desirable. The most important challenge for New India will be to establish Sustainable Development for a Sustainable Future.

In response to the clarion call by the Honourable Prime Minister of India, it is our Sankalp that innovation and technology, be leveraged consciously, to deliver a solution to this challenge for New India. This is the way. The way toward siddhi and beyond for New India@75.

NEET AND OPTIONS BEYOND MBBS

4. Fields Associated with Biology

Biology being such a wide and diverse field, has applications in many areas, all of which are good options for you to consider. Why not help people get fit and maintain a healthy lifestyle by eating right? Careers in the domain of Nutrition and Fitness allow you to do that, with options such as becoming a Dietician/ Nutritionist, Fitness Trainer, Yoga Practitioner, etc. These are all lucrative options because people are increasingly becoming concerned with their health, leading to a sudden boom in the health and nutrition industry.

There are a number of career options to explore in the field of Agriculture, such as Horticulture, Dairy Technology, Agricultural Engineering, Fisheries Science, Agricultural Economics, and more. Contrary to the general notion, these are all in-demand fields and definitely do not involve farming! Yet another option related to Biology is Pharmacology. It is a great combination of science, healthcare, research and technology

5. Management Courses in Healthcare

Management with Medicine can be a brilliant combination. People in these fields manage the administration of hospitals including hospital supplies, personnel, finance, patient care services and other areas to ensure smooth functioning. Hospital Management and Hospital Administration are the two courses you can pursue to get into this field. Public Health Administration is another area that would give you the opportunity to work for the healthcare of the lower socio-economic strata of society through government health projects.

Although Hospital Management programmes are available mostly at the Master's Level (can be coupled with any other undergraduate course in Biology), you can find Public Health Administration courses at the undergraduate level too.

6. Mental Health Care

Doctors mostly cater to the physical well-being of people, but what about their mental well-being? Clinical Psychology is the field where you work to understand why people suffer from mental health issues such as depression, anxiety, hallucinations, etc. Other related areas in psychology include counselling psychology, health psychology, child psychology, neuropsychology, etc.

7. Legal Medical Advisor

Considered a lucrative career option after MBBS, a legal medical advisor is called for when special court cases need expert medical advice on some specific aspects. Many crimes require a medical expert's opinion. Hence, this is truly a viable job option after MBBS. Long-running cases in courts make this profession extremely demanding at times.

With a plethora of options available instead of and after MBBS, PCB students now have versatile opportunities to take up what interest them. This way you can explore other options without closing doors on Biology for the future.
